

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt, which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

STEPMOTHER NOW IN JAIL

Blood Transfusion May Be Means of Saving Marshall Girl's Life.

Easton, Md., Nov. 20.—That blood transfusion will have to be resorted to in order to save the life of Grace Marshall was regarded as a possibility by Dr. Charles F. Davidson, her physician, on Wednesday.

The young woman, who, it is alleged was imprisoned by her father in the Marshall home for nearly 12 years, was removed Wednesday to the Easton hospital from an aunt's home, where she had been since her liberation last week.

Frank Marshall, the father, is held in Easton jail without bail pending a further hearing on the charge of assault with intent to murder.

Mrs. Marshall, the young woman's stepmother, was arrested Wednesday on a warrant issued Tuesday, charging her with assault. She was placed in jail here.

PROFIT WAS CUT DOWN

J. P. Morgan Would Not "Stand for" $2,250,000 Rake-Off

ALL BILLARD GOT WAS ABOUT $150,000

Mellen Makes a Revelation and Tells of Boston Banker's Profits

New York, Nov. 20.—John Billard, the coal dealer, never got the $2,250,000 profit that was due him as the result of his famous deal with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, whereby he bought 109,948 shares of Boston and Maine stock from the road at 125 and sold it back a year later at 150. This was brought out Wednesday at the trial of the 11 former directors of the road on the charge of criminal violation of the Sherman law.

The late J. P. Morgan, according to the testimony of Charles S. Mellen, objected to the profit as "unconscionable" and said that "he could not, and would not stand for it." As a result, the board of directors passed a resolution requiring Billard, before the transaction was consummated, to turn over all his profits, less a reasonable compensation, to the New Haven. Just what the compensation was the government had not brought out when the trial adjourned Wednesday, but it was understood that the prosecution expected to prove that it was in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The government was delayed in getting to this testimony by an argument over the admission of minutes of the board of directors, which purported to show that in accordance to the resolution, Billard's profits, his demand notes, and the stock of the Billard company were assigned by him into the treasury of the New England Navigation company, a New Haven subsidiary.

Judge Hunt ruled the evidence out after Mr. Mellen had testified that the minutes did not accurately represent a report he had made to the board on the adjustment he had made with Billard.

"There was a little discrepancy of a million dollars, that's all," remarked the witness, adding that the late J. G. Parker, secretary of the board, had incorrectly recorded the proceedings.

The Billard deal was arranged, according to the government, so that the New Haven could keep control of the Boston and Maine until an act was passed by the Massachusetts legislature permitting it to own it legally. The government's chief purpose in introducing the disputed minutes was to show that in spite of the contention of the defense, Billard was a free agent. While he owned the stock the New Haven appeared to have sufficient control over him to induce him to give up his profits.

R. L. Batts, after stating that he would seek to prove by other testimony that the minutes were correct, asked Mr. Mellen if the attention of the board had ever been called to the alleged inaccuracy.

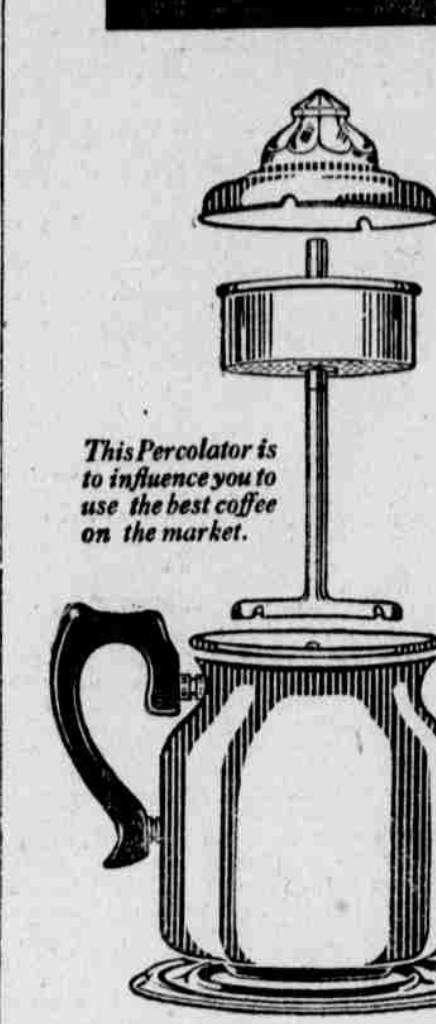

"Yes, about two and a half months later," he replied. "I was going to use the shorthand method to correct it—rip it right out of the book, but according to Mr. Ledyard (Lewis Cass Ledyard, a defendant), I was near going to state's prison. He said 'No' and that it was a crime, and I was not going to commit a crime. But the record was wrong. If I am not right about it, then my memory is absolutely good for nothing."
